GOOGLE CARDBOARD

The Google cardboard is the highest grossing product of the firm. To date there are 38,000 sales after the open house. The Google cardboard alone has brought in $4,700 alone with 94 products sold. You may ask yourself why this is the highest grossing product, and that answer is simple, the price and simplicity of the product. With the product being more geared towards the beginners in the market that easily converts to the market we are dealing with in the startup VEI economy. Another reason why they are a big hit, because it is meant to be used with your phone, instead of needing a computer capable of running VR software.

FT. LAUDERDALE

A small team of Jake Coleman, David Harris, Hadi Abu-Asab, Jayson Rivera, Gabriel Chile, and Zachary Weber was sent to compete. They had the task of representing our company and showing us off to the rest of the VEI world. They put a presentation together to show how lucrative and cutting edge we are.

PREPARING FOR NEW YORK

Our firm has been working tirelessly to try to prepare ourselves for the tradeshow in New York. We have been planning out the expenses of the booth, airfare, hotel, and extra spending money needed for the itinerary. This is what we have been working for tirelessly with all of the extra blood, sweat, and tears to make the firm great.
